Think about your primary roles: income-producing roles, faith roles, community service roles, family roles, hobbies... everything.

We are about to get to the “real” of your life as you are living it right now. To do so, it's time to get very specific and analytical.

In the chart below, list the 3 major Roles where you have spent the majority of your time over the last year.

Then rate your level of happiness and satisfaction that you got from that Role on a scale of 1 to 10, where a 1 has no value, and a 10 means you are totally enthralled at being in that Role.

Next, on a scale of 1-10, rate how well this role has produced personally desired and meaningful results in your life that are aligned with your Spirit-Led Values.

Role:	Time?	Happy?	On Purpose?
1. _____	% _____	# _____	# _____
2. _____	% _____	# _____	# _____
3. _____	% _____	# _____	# _____

Finally, think back over this last year again and estimate the amount of time that you spent in each Role as a percent of your total waking hours. Done?

Take a minute now and review all the insights you have gained so far from the Values, Visions and Roles chapters. Based on your feeling of what you want most for your life and what you think is high on the agenda of God's Plan for you, enter your most preferred Top 3 current or strongly desired future Roles.

Then enter the percent of time you would like to spend in each Role over the next year. Add your rating of 1-10 for your prediction of how much this Role will give you meaning and purpose and then rate your probability of happiness and satisfaction.

This preferred rationing of your time may require you to take into account real world needs such as family, income or resources.

But it is very helpful to create a target of an ideal life first, and then discover how, with God's help, you can start moving closer to this preferred way of spending your precious time.

Most Preferred Role:	Time?	Happy?	On Purpose?

2. _____	% _____	# _____	# _____
